2015 Quiet Clubbing Party - Plaza 33

Quiet Events, founded by Will Petz held a free event open to the public at Plaza 33 (33rd street between 7th and 8th Avenue). Petz' quiet parties create a bridge unifying people of all ages, genders, and nationalities creating a fun and unique environment for people who enjoy dancing, singing, and interacting with others.

Quiet Events is a company that hosts parties on trains, in public spaces, clubs, rooftops and various other spaces. These parties are unlike any ordinary party as partygoers are given a set of LED headphones which allows you to control the music you are listening to. Three separate channels are at work playing three different styles of music that you can choose from. As you are partying, you are able to switch the channel while your fellow party people are able to see the specific colored light signifying the channel you are listening to at that particular moment. What makes these parties even more special is the social environment that it promotes. If you take the headphones off or turn the switch off, the club or venue itself is not playing any music on speakers. You will be able to talk to other partygoers, which makes it easier to meet and get to know new people than at a traditional club for instance. Quiet Events are currently active in New York and San Francisco where the popularity of the company is booming. Some say that Quiet Events could very well be the new wave of partying. You can keep updated on future events on their website at www.QuietEvents.com
